Hempstead Notes.

HEMPSTEAD, Tex., Nov. 14.—The county commissioners' court convened in regular quarterly session this morning. It has been engaged all day in routine business and tomorrow morning will overhaul the election returns and declare the result of the late election.

Rev. Sid Williams, the well known evangelist, is holding revival services at the Baptist church, which is crowded every night, and thus far has succeeded in coralling a number of tough sinners.

Calla McCornell, who was badly wounded at Fields' store, in precinct No. 3, on election day, is now considered out of danger and is rapidly improving.

Aspirants for the office of postmaster of Hempstead are numerous here and every one is quite sure that he has the best chance to capture the rich prize, and should the president of the United States find a scarcity of timber in the democratic ranks of Texas for consulates, etc., in foreign lands Waller county can supply all demands.
